

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A protective device is for a consumer branch. In order to find an easy, constructive solution which is used to protect the consumer branch in a comprehensive manner, the protective device includes a first protective element to provide motor and line protection, and an integrated second protective element with a fuse, to protect against a short-circuit.